1924 Program for State Parks

The Committee on State Park Plan of the New York State Association consisting largely of commissioners of the various state parks and representatives of state recreational societies has issued a revised copy of its report of last year showing what progress has been made on the unified state park program and announcing the program for 1924.

The report is signed by over forty members of the committee from all parts of the state and includes a message from Governor Smith and letters of endorsement from legislative leaders.

The report calls attention to the appropriations made last year and indicates that additional park lands have been purchased and improvements made in state parks in every section. Attention is also called to the activities of the committee in providing for the transfer of state lands to municipalities for park purposes. The progress made in the extension of the Palisades Park, Allegany Park, Broux Parkway, Niagara Reservation, Letchworth Park, Lake George Park, John Boyd Thacher Park, in the acquisition of new park areas in the Finger Lakes region and at Saratoga Springs is outlined and also the start made toward a tri-state park in the Taconic Forest, which lies in the states of New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut. The report contains maps and pictures illustrating present and proposed developments.

The committee asks for a substantial appropriation similar to the 1923 appropriation to take care of further extensions in 1924 and for a bond issue of $15,000,000 which will insure the completion of the entire program in the course of the next eight or ten years. The bond issue funds are to be divided as follows:

To the forest preserve $5,000,000, Palisades Park $3,500,000, Allegany Park $2,000,000, Niagara Reservation extensions $1,000,000, extension of the Broux Parkway to the Bear Mountain Bridge $1,000,000, for the park system in the Finger Lakes region $500,000, Letchworth Park $500,000, Long Island Park system $1,000,000 and for Lake George Park, Saratoga Reservation, the Taconic Park and smaller parks $500,000.

Particular emphasis is laid on the importance of creating a state park council composed of the heads of the larger parks and recreational organizations which will act as a central clearing house for the parks in the future and which will take the place of the unofficial committee of the New York State Association.

Other legislation recommended includes the creation of a Long Island State Park Commission, the head of which will be represented on the state park council, the creation of a regional Finger Lakes Commission to take the place of the two present commissions and scattered park agencies in the Finger Lakes region, the abolition of the Broux Parkway Commission, when construction work is completed and the transfer of its properties to New York City and Westchester county, the construction of adequate roads into and through several state parks which now lack proper approaches, and making available funds from the sale of timber in the Adirondacks to the Conservation Commission for the extension of the Forest Preserve in 1924.

The bills to carry out this program will be introduced by Senator Nathan Straus, Jr., in the senate and by Assemblyman Joseph A. McGinnis and Assemblyman F. Trubee Davidson in the assembly.

The members of the State Park Plan Committee include Alphonso T. Clearwater of this city.

RHINESTONES AND CRYSTALS IN FASHION'S SCHEME

Glass and pastes were used thousands of years ago for jewelry, because men had not yet learned the secret of cutting and polishing hard precious stones. Later they were employed as more or less successful and inexpensive imitations of precious jewelry.

The coloring of glass for beads and medallions was known as far back as 3,000 years ago. The monks around 1100 A. D. made saffron yellow and crimson glass.

Brian, in Venice, invented in 1280 the so-called "aventurin" which contains minute metal crystals. A German by the name of Weidenhammer rediscovered in 1520 the blue glass of the ancient Romans. Two Englishmen, Clifford and Paulden, invented in 1661 crystal glass which was known to the Venetians centuries before. Dr. Andreas Cassius of Hamburg invented the ruby glass in 1676.

Rhinestone, which is used more extensively than any other paste for imitation jewelry, was invented in 1810 by Joseph Strasser in Vienna. After the name of this inventor the French and Germans still call the composition "strass."

Some Civil Service Facts

The law establishing the United States civil service commission was enacted January 16, 1883.

In 1883, approximately 120,000 persons were employed in the executive civil service of the United States. The number of such employees on December 31, 1923, was 548,506. The greatest number employed at one time was 917,760, on November 11, 1918, the date of the armistice.

In 1883, 12,924 positions were classified under the civil service law, and, therefore, subject to competitive examination. The number of such positions on December 31, 1923, was approximately 400,000.

In the forty-one years of its life, the commission has given competitive examinations to 4,713,305 applicants, 1,412,007 of whom have been appointed.

The commission is represented in approximately 4,000 cities and villages of the United States by local boards of examiners having a total membership of more than 10,000.

Local board members are attached to other branches of the service and give a part of their time to the work of the civil service commission, for which they receive no additional compensation.

The commission gives examinations for more than a thousand different kinds of occupations, ranging from ordinary unskilled laborers to the highest grades of technical, scientific and administrative positions.

The members of the present civil service commission are William C. Deming, president, George R. Wales and Helen H. Gardner.

Mrs. Gardner is the only woman who ever held the office of United States civil service commissioner.

Theodore Roosevelt was a member of the civil service commission from May 13, 1889, to May 5, 1895. The fundamental principle of the civil service law is to maintain in the parts of the service covered by its provisions a merit system whereby selection for appointment shall be made upon the basis of demonstrated relative fitness, without regard to political, religious or other similar considerations.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Practical Model For School Wear.

4556. Wool crepe and plaid suiting are here combined. The long lines of the waist are pleasing and the plaid skirt affords comfort and freedom in moving.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. A 12 year size requires 2 yards of plaid or check material, and 1 1/2 yard of plain material. If one material is used 2 1/2 yards 40 inches wide will be required.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

A FROCK THAT HAS A BOYISH CHARACTER

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The tailored frock which is distinctly boyish in character, is having a tremendous success which is not surprising, since it has a Paris background—the Garconne dress having scored last season overseas.

The model sketched is from Doeuillet and is made as so many of such frocks are, of black satin with a white gilet. While actually in one-piece, the dress has something of the two-piece effect and, as everyone knows, the variety of treatments accorded the overblouse which is severely plain for street wear and handsomely embroidered in more elaborate models.

The overblouse differs in length, the hip and three-quarter line being sponsored, the former decidedly youthful and the latter usually more dignified.

The Chinese influence in the development of the overblouse is undeniable and this, of course, applies to the trimmings as well as to the mandarin lines.

Bengaline is a featured fabric and is noted in two and three-piece costumes. Another fabric given ample representation is shirting silk used for the "Garcon" type.

Crepes satins are used extensively in dresses for street wear. Striped silks, which are one of the popular varieties, favor a bayadere rather than a perpendicular arrangement, and frequently just a group of such stripes shown in combination with plain materials, especially in the sports models where simple blouses and pleated skirts are prominent.

Dresses suited to the more mature figure introduce front fullnesses in a variety of ways. Circular aprons and circular panels are used, the latter generally placed forward on the hips and marking a long waistline. Dresses, no matter of what type remain flat backed and straight, although occasional cape panels are used to balance the front fullness on a skirt.

Sleeves are an item of distinct interest in themselves and the two extremes are alternated, while three-quarter and flowing effects are utterly missing.

Coykendall Estate Wins

Supreme Court Appellate Division Reverses Judge Fowler's Order Assessing Additional Tax Asked by State Comptroller—Of Far Reaching Effect.

The appellate division of the supreme court at Albany on Tuesday handed down an important decision on the appeal taken by Edward Coykendall, executor of Samuel D. Coykendall, deceased, from an order made by County Judge Joseph M. Fowler acting as Surrogate of Ulster county in the place of Walter N. Gill, disqualified to act. The order was made on the 8th day of November, 1922, on the application of the comptroller of the state of New York, adding that the order fixing the transfer tax entered on Mr. Coykendall's estate on the 13th day of June, 1921, be modified by the imposition of an additional tax to the amount of $2,877.58 with interest from the 7th day of June, 1919.

The case is important not so much for the amount involved as for the sweeping effect of the decision. Mr. Coykendall died on the 14th day of January, 1913. A proceeding to assess the transfer tax was instituted by Edward Coykendall as executor, a transfer tax appraiser was appointed who filed his report on the 10th day of October, 1914, upon the footing of which a taxing order was entered fixing the tax on the 6th day of November, 1914, by Judge Jennings, then county judge of Ulster county, acting as surrogate. From this order, an appeal was taken by the state comptroller. Subsequently the appeal was dismissed.

The report of the appraiser found Mr. Coykendall's net estate to be $322,136.45, the value of the specific devise to his widow being $85,000, the value of the residuary estate to be $247,136.45. The will after a specific devise and bequest to the widow, created a trust of the residue for the life of the widow and the life of Mr. Coykendall's children during the time of his death, who at the time of the death of his wife all be the youngest, the income of one-half of the trust fund was directed to be paid to the widow during her life, the income of the other half as directed to be distributed equally among Mr. Coykendall's children during her life, and by adjudication after her death the one-half received by her during her life was distributed equally among the children. He left a widow and seven children. One, Robert B. Coykendall, died prior to the conclusion of the transfer tax proceeding; a second son, Harry S. Coykendall died on the 22nd day of October, 1914, without a will and without issue. Mrs. Coykendall died on the 14th day of June, 1919. The amount of the tax fixed in 1914, which was $1,186.73, fully was paid. No further proceedings were taken by the comptroller or the state tax department until in 1922 when the special counsel of the comptroller began a proceeding to reopen the whole matter and to charge the estate with an additional tax not because there was any additional property to tax but because a different classification had been made because of the death of Robert B. and Harry S. Coykendall.

The comptroller predicated his contention upon Section 230 of chapter 800 of the Laws of 1911, and the amendatory acts. That act provided that:

"Where any property shall, after the passage of this chapter, be transferred subject to any charge, estate interest, determinable by the death of any person, or at any period ascertainable only by reference to death, the increase accruing to any person or corporation upon the extinction or determination of such charge, estate of interest shall be deemed a transfer of property taxable under the provisions of this article in the same manner as though the person or corporation beneficially entitled thereto had then acquired such increase from the person from whom the title to their respective estates or interests is derived."

The comptroller claimed that the death of Robert B. and Harry S. Coykendall, while it did not increase the taxable property of the estate, increased the amount of the distributive shares of the other residuary legatees. Judge Clearwater who represented Edward Coykendall as executor, admitted that the death of Robert and Harry of necessity increased that amount of the estate which would pass to the surviving residuary legatees, but contended that it did not increase the gross amount to be distributed, and therefore no additional tax could be assessed.

There was a hearing before Judge Fowler as acting surrogate. Evidence was taken and, briefs were read. The judge upheld the contention of the comptroller and assessed an additional tax upon the estate of $2,877.58 with interest from the 7th day of June, 1919. From this the executor appealed to the appellate division where the appeal was argued in Albany in November. The comptroller and the state tax department have been represented by a succession of counsel; among them Lafayette B. Gleason, Joseph McCloy, Daniel William W. Wingate, Emanuel Metzger, the Hon. Andrew J. Cook, and the Hon. Charles Curtin. Counsel for the comptroller stated that they had worked over the case for several months because while the appeal immediately involved was of specially large, a decision in the Coykendall case would affect other estates to the amount of upwards of $200,000,000 upon which the state could collect additional taxes it could succeed in the Coykendall case. On the argument before the appellate division Judge Clearwater characterized the attitude of the comptroller and of the state tax department as without precedent, desperate alike of ancestry and progeny, grotesque, fantastic and iridescent, a conception of a versatile and scientific intellect, and as a characteristic attempt by a state bureaucracy to arrogate to himself functions not involved upon him either by the constitution or the laws; also he claimed that the surrogate was without power to impose an additional tax.

Judge Fowler overruled this contention and made the order above stated which the appellate division in its just handed down decision unanimously reversed with costs to the executor in the appellate division and in the court below. The reversal is upon the law and sustains Judge Clearwater's contention that the acting surrogate totally was destitute of power to make the order. In addition to reversing Judge Fowler's order, the appellate division dismisses the proceeding upon the ground that it is unauthorized by any provision of law.

How Silver in India Helped to Win the War

Silver fought another good fight in the World war. In 1915 the allied armies were battling desperately. Every available man was on the fighting line. One of the things the allies needed most was jute; gunny sucking is another name for jute. There is only one place in the world to get jute—India. Patiently the British government had taught the natives that silver certificates were as good as silver, but by 1915 the British government, by jute purchases, had withdrawn nearly all the silver used to back these certificates, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society. Germany learned this and began propaganda in India. A run on Indian banks would have destroyed the confidence of the natives in Britain and thrown India into revolt.

Silver must be found somewhere to save India, and possibly to save the allies. Supplies of mined silver had been exhausted. There was only one big source of silver, the vaults of the United States treasury. Here great piles of silver dollars backed our silver certificates. Britain asked for that silver. The United States sold it gladly. More than 400,000,000 of silver dollars were melted and sent to India, later to be replaced in the vaults by new purchases through the Pittman silver act. That's how silver helped win the war.

Intuition of Woman Is Swifter Than Is Man's

Sir Humphrey Rolleston, president of the British Royal College of Surgeons, verifies the observation that in women instinct is highly developed, says a London letter in the New York Evening Post.

"Women," declared Sir Humphrey the other day, "have in a more developed degree than men the power of rapid perception or intuition, allied to second sight and clairvoyance, or of arriving at a correct solution of a problem per saltum. Apart from its potential use and application in research, this faculty of arriving immediately at a correct opinion, without the process of conscious ratiocination, resembles the clinical instinct born of long years of experience, and is no doubt a function of the unconscious which is so invaluable in diagnosis. Hospital sisters often have this power, and when reinforced by a more extensive training, it should be an asset to woman doctors.

While the average woman student was superior to the average man, the best woman students were not so able as the best men.

Many Use Metric System

The metric system of measurement was originated in 1786 by James Watt, the noted English inventor. One of the first nations to adopt this system was France during the French Revolution. Lavoisier, the great French chemist, was the principal influence for its adoption. Today every civilized nation in the world, except the United States and Great Britain, has adopted the metric system. These two English-speaking nations now wrestle with a jumble of other systems, hence a strong demand that the world centralize on one popular system—the metric.

They Meant Business

A man slipped on a banana peel and executed a very funny fall, not being hurt, as it turned out, but having his dignity somewhat ruffled. When he recovered a moment later a friend was holding his hat and a number of people had formed a circle.

"What do these idlers want?" he snarled.

"They are not idlers," explained his friend soothingly. "Here's a doctor who wants to look you over, a lawyer ready to bring suit for you and a producer of comic films who would like to sign you up."

Purely Ornamental

British Consul General Armstrong was talking at a New York reception about the popularity of the prince of Wales.

"When the prince," he said, "visits Balmoral, the royal estate in Scotland, he always wears the kilt. Two pretty lassies passed him on the road one day.

"Did you see his knees?" said one of the lassies afterward. "They were as pink and dimpled as a baby's."

"I wanted to kiss them, so I did."

"Boo," said the other lassie; "they didn't look as if he prayed much."

Plenty of Capital.

"What would you like for your birthday?" asked mother.

"I want a small auto, a big doll, skates and candy."

"Why, I haven't got so much money to buy so many things."

Norma replied: "That's nothing. Papa's got a check book. There are a lot of pages in the book yet. We don't need money."

HENDERSON ADJUSTABLE ABDOMINAL SUPPORT CORSET

Made of High Grade Pekin Coutil Sizes 25 to 40.

Many women by not being properly corseted have acquired and various others naturally have prominent abdomens; for such figures numerous corsets are made with abdominal supports permanently fastened therein. These supports are principally made of wide elastic sections which flatten the abdomen but do not give the proper support and not being adjustable they may be fastened too high or too low in the corset, or too tight or too loose to meet the figure requirements.

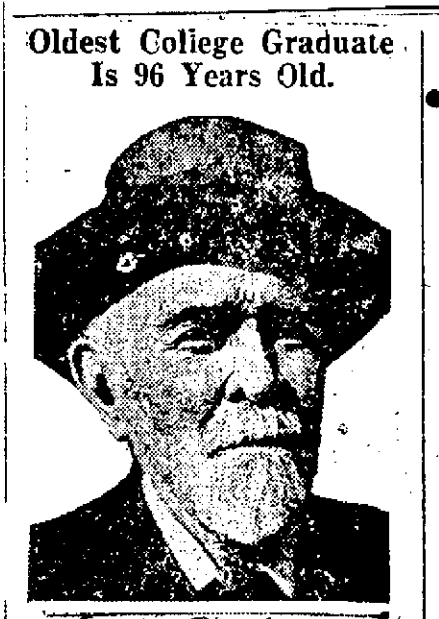

Henderson Adjustable Abdominal Supports are shaped to fit the abdominal curves and to cup under and give restful support, and at the same time with comfort material—ly reduce the prominence of the abdomen. These supports can be quickly raised or lowered, tightened or loosened to meet the wearer's needs by the adjustment of the laces at each side of the supports. They should be seen and fitted with the corset to be fully appreciated.

THE RURAL SCHOOLS.

The relation between a report made by the mayors' conference bureau of municipal information concerning the increase in the cost of education in New York state cities and an exposition of some of the features of the proposed rural school which is sponsored by the Committee of Twenty-one becomes apparent as the two documents are examined.

During the past five years school expenses in cities of the second class and cities of the third class in New York state have increased 127 per cent. During the same period the expenses of municipal government have increased 16 per cent. Naturally, the bulk of the school moneys in any city is expended for salaries, and there is no disputing the fact that increased salaries have caused the greatest increase in school expenditures.

"This item of expense," says the recent report issued by the mayors' conference bureau of municipal information, "is controlled by the salary schedule and the number of instructors employed. As the state has fixed by general law a salary schedule, school and city officials are not responsible for the advance resulting from increased salaries. Local officials are, however, responsible for the number of instructors employed except when made necessary by mandatory increase in educational functions."

The conclusion of a lengthy exposition concerning the rural school bill, as elucidated by Commissioner Gilbert, states that "The present appropriation for the support of the public schools apportioned by the state is in the neighborhood of $40,000,000. To provide the state aid authorized by this bill will require an increase in this amount of about $12,000,000. This amount should be compared with the amount now apportioned to the districts which will be included in the community districts, which was during the school year of 1922-23 approximately $5,000,000. The city of New York pays approximately 67 per cent of the total amount. All of the cities and school districts of the state except the community districts will pay approximately 90 per cent of the entire tax. It amounts, therefore, to the cities of the state presenting to the country districts the sum of $12,000,000 to be used by them in meeting the burden of school cost."

While every city realizes it must contribute to the general welfare of the state even at the expense of unequal taxation because of the benefits directly derived therefrom, it is not pleasant to contemplate a great department of the state using the argument of saddling new expenses on the city as "bait" to get rural support for a pet measure. The majority of rural communities will not be strongly influenced even by such "bait," when their schools are concerned, and can be depended on to approve or reject the rural school bill on its merits alone, which is the proper method of determination.

DAWES ON THE JOB

General Dawes, chairman of the expert commission appointed to look into the German reparations question, made a characteristic speech at the committee's first meeting in Paris. He notified Europe that the re-establishment of German productivity is to be aimed at by "practical men free from political pressure," who will not consider the "political effect of this or that act of common sense," who will disregard "those foul and carrion-loving vultures, the nationalistic demagogues of all countries, who would exploit their pitiful personalities out of the common misfortune." Violent language, but well meant.

As for America, he found this to say right out loud: "I read in shame and humiliation the outpourings of the American nationalistic demagogues who undertake to lecture Europe in order to lift themselves into some pretty office or to maintain their political popularity." Strong language again, though very pointed.

But we miss from General Dawes's speech similarly pointed words addressed to Germany itself. It was well enough to say, "Let us first help Germany get well," but Germany also is in need of a sharp reminder that more is expected of her than walls, that she needs to get down to active, constructive and honest effort. It is one thing to lecture Europe and America, though there may be urgent need of it in both cases, but it is quite another to induce Germany to pay, and to see to it that she pays, anything at all. Undoubtedly General Dawes is a good man to have on the job, however.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

A SIMPLE METHOD OF BUILDING AND REDUCING.

A health writer during the war made a very significant statement. In effect it was this: "If the people of the United States and Canada would go to bed one hour earlier, and get up at their usual time, the food they would save would feed all the American and Canadian soldiers under arms."

Now there is not any war on at present and plain food can be obtained by almost everybody, so there is no need for this early to bed advice from the saving of food standpoint.

But what is the significance of an extra hour in bed?

Simply that when we are at rest, there is very little call for maintaining the work of the body, as compared to the need when we are about on our feet.

It has been estimated that one lying in complete repose uses only one fifth of the energy that is required by the body when walking about. And thus many thin folks wonder why they remain so thin, notwithstanding the fair amount of food they eat every day.

They seem to forget that they are more or less on the move all the time.

Their friends tell them that they don't know what it means to sit down and rest themselves. They are often late to bed and up early in the morning.

Active minded people who just have to hustle to be happy.

It is just here that they should think of the words of the health writer, and the saving of food by the extra hour's sleep. This extra hour would perhaps see some of their food made into flesh.

And so whenever the opportunity comes throughout the day, they should try and get a few minutes complete repose, even a few minutes sleep.

Glidstone could go off to sleep for a few minutes whenever he wished to do so, and it is said that President Coolidge actually takes a little nap before he makes a speech.

To the other type, the heavy individual the advice is even more timely. The person who is overweight usually—not always—likes to take a full night's sleep, and to get a chair as often as possible throughout the day.

It can readily be seen that if such a one is willing to do without the extra hour at night, and the frequent rests during the day, he is going to use up a considerable quantity of his surplus flesh.

SOYBEAN HAY GOOD FOR WINTERING EWE.

Soybean hay, particularly if it may be combined with alfalfa, makes an efficient feed for wintering breeding ewes, say the sheep men at the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, who cite results of experiments made in Iowa. It is still better to feed, along with the combination hay, some corn silage, grain and salt.

These experiments showed that it required less grain to keep the ewes on test in condition when soybean hay was fed in place of alfalfa hay. A combination of the two hays lessened the grain requirement below that needed when either hay was fed alone. The fact that the good soybean hay carries a concentrate in the form of the soybean seed is one reason for its value.

The test indicated, further, that when soybean hay replaced alfalfa entirely 100 pounds of it substituted for 104 pounds of alfalfa hay and 10 pounds of corn grain, a total of 114 pounds.

When 74 pound of soybean hay was introduced into the ration it was found possible to save .56 pound of alfalfa hay and .34 pound of grain daily for each ewe.

This meant that the feeding of 100 pounds of soybean hay saved 76 pounds of alfalfa hay and 46 pounds of corn grain, a total of 122 pounds.

Home-Seekers' Re-elect Officers

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Home-Seekers' Co-operative Savings & Loan Association was held on Monday evening and the following officers and directors were re-elected: James Tongue, president; Remsen B. DuBois, vice-president; Irvin McCausland, secretary; Charles R. O'Connor, treasurer; Palmer A. Canfield, Daniel Halloran and Morris Hynes, directors for three years. The Board of Directors have re-appointed the Hon. Frederick Stephan Jr., attorney and Alfred W. Tongue and Munroe Burger, auditors.

The directors whose terms do not expire this year are: Dr. Charles D. Carter, Allen S. Hammond, Fred J. Walter, Harry C. Smith, Henry W. Otis and Jacob Owen.

It was announced that the 24th series of shares will mature on March 4th, with the 140 payment, and that subscriptions are already coming in for shares in the 46th series, which opens on February 4th.

PINE HILL.

Pine Hill, Jan. 22.—H. Risoff, who owns The Alpine, at this place, but is spending the winter in New York with his family, was a guest at the Mountain Breeze House over Sunday.

Harold Eignor has commenced work on a new porch on his cottage on Elm street. When completed it will add very much to the appearance of his property.

Mr. and Mrs. Myer Slatin, who were called to New York on account of the death of Mrs. Slatin's father, returned home on Friday.

Ezra Griffin, who fell from a scaffold about two weeks ago and was quite seriously injured, has so far recovered as to be able to be about the house.

Harvey Smith motored to Margaretville last Saturday.

Pine Hill has no barber this winter and people who need a hair cut or a shave are obliged to go to Fleischmanns for it. A good opening here for a good barber.

Dr. Wilson, of Fleischmanns made a professional visit to Pine Hill on Tuesday.

Thin Men Skinny Men Run Down Men Nervous Men

You probably know that Cod Liver Oil is the greatest flesh producer in the world.

Because it contains more Vitamins than any food you can get. You'll be glad to know that Cod Liver Oil comes in sugar-coated tablets now, so if you really want to get 10 or 20 pounds of real healthy flesh on your bones and feel well and strong ask any druggist for a box of Cod Liver Oil Tablets.

Only 60 cents a box and if you don't gain five pounds in 30 days your druggist will hand you back the money you paid for them.

It isn't anything unusual for a person to gain 10 pounds in 30 days.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified Coconut oil shampoo. For this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else on the market. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonsfuls is all that is required. Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in, making an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Valley Y. M. H. A. at St. Peter's

Manager Zellmer of the St. Peter's Big Five has booked the All Valley Y. M. H. A. team for the attraction on Monday evening, January 22.

The last appearance the valley team made against the Saints they were beaten 24-19. The game was very fast and St. Peter's good foul shooting proved to be their success in winning as they were outpointed 9 to 6 from the floor.

Undoubtedly the same line up will be used by the Valley Y. M. H. A. A good fast game can be expected as the valley team would like to even things with the Saints.

Tickets are now on sale. A preliminary game will be played and dancing will follow the games.

ROSENDALE BAPTIST CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual and corporate meeting of the Rosendale Baptist Church was held at the church this week. The reports given showed that the church had enjoyed one of its most prosperous years in every branch of its activity. The fiscal year came to a close with every bill paid and a substantial balance in the treasury. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Trustee, the Rev. G. W. Guthrie; church clerk, Mrs. J. R. Simmons; church treasurer, Mrs. Ralph Levever; deaconesses, Mrs. Mary Dunbar and Mrs. Silas Snyder. The outlook for the coming year is bright and plans are being formed for special lines of work which will be put into operation soon. Much interest is being manifested by the friends and members of the church and it is hoped that the coming year will exceed the past year along every line.

Smith Scores Mark A. Daly

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Jan. 23.—Declaring that politics is the real motive behind the charges made by the Associated Industries against the state labor department, Governor Smith this afternoon delivered a bitter and scathing attack upon Mark A. Daly, secretary of the organization.

"The whole thing looks to me like an effort on Daly's part to create an atmosphere in this capitol antagonistic to pending labor legislation," the governor declared.

The governor warned Daly and the directors of the Associated Industries that he intended to "go to the bottom of this affair."

"You laid all these charges against the labor department on misinformation and malinformation and not one of them has been upheld," the governor fairly shouted at Daly sitting across the table.

"I would like to know why you, Mr. Daly, are attempting to create this atmosphere in the Legislature," the governor continued. "It has been shown here that not one of the directors of the Associated Industries knew anything about these charges. They depend upon you, and I have a right to question your motives."

"Everything I have even done at the capitol has been open and above board," Daly started to say when the governor interrupted with: "How much salary do you receive a year from your organization?"

Daly hesitated a moment and said, $17,000.

Daly denied he was attempting to create an atmosphere against labor measures. He said there was no politics in demand made on the governor to investigate the labor department.

"It was hurriedly entered into but it was in good faith, and we had no idea of influencing any pending legislation," he added.

At one time during the hearing it appeared as if the probe into the labor department had been switched suddenly by the governor into an investigation of the legislative activities of Mr. Daly.

"The trouble is you didn't have any evidence when you made these charges," the governor told Daly. "If you did, why did you send a telegram to the members of your organization eight days after the charges had been made asking them to collect all the evidence they could and rush it to you at your headquarters in this city?"

SOCIETY NOTES

Olympian Club.

The regular meeting of the Olympian Club has been postponed from this week to next Monday when Miss Hull will entertain the club at the home of Miss Healey.

Executive Federation Meeting.

On Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock the January meeting of the executive committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs will be held at the Kingston City Library. All chairmen of wards during the sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals are reminded that absolutely final reports of their sales must be in time for this meeting.

Sorosis.

Sorosis met on Monday afternoon with Mrs. George Styles, Jr. The roll call was current events. Mrs. Lusher gave conclusively, but most interestingly, a paper on "The Life of Tolstoi." This was followed by an entertaining and extemporaneous review of "Anna Karenina," given by Mrs. Graham. Next Monday evening Sorosis will meet at 7:30 o'clock with Mrs. Mattie Tobey.

Lowell Club.

On Tuesday afternoon the Lowell Club met at the home of Mrs. Teller. The paper for the day, a most excellent one on "Christiana, Her Palaces, Universities, Cathedrals," was by Mrs. C. E. Wonderly. This was followed by a sketch on "Some Quaint Old Towns: Bergen, Mold, Frohndheim," sent in by Miss Risely, who was unable to be present. The roll call was "Norway News Items." Next Tuesday the Lowell Club will meet with Mrs. Wonderly.

Naccarato-Klonowski.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Immaculate Conception Church on Delaware avenue on Sunday afternoon, January 20, by the Rev. Ignatius Bialdyska, when Miss Maria Klonowski became the bride of John Paul Naccarato. The bride was given away by her father. The bride was charmingly gowned in white charmesse with a coronet of pearls and a veil of full train length. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and orange blossoms. Miss Helen Klonowski, sister of the bride, bridesmaid, was charmingly gowned in honeydew georgette over satin, trimmed with gold, and a hat to match. She carried a bouquet of pink rose buds and sweet peas. Nicholas Cushtor was best man. The wedding march was played by T. B. Francis-kowski and the solos sung by him were very beautiful. The wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents. The home was beautifully decorated. A very large number of guests were present from Amsterdam, Schenectady, Weehawken and Kingston. The bride received many beautiful presents of gold, glass, silver, linen, money in cut glass, checks and furniture. Mr. and Mrs. Naccarato left on an extended honeymoon trip through New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York states. On their return they will reside on Delaware avenue, where a newly furnished home awaits them.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors for their assistance and sympathy in the sickness and death of our cousin, Mrs. Mary J. Roach.

MR. AND MRS. ISAAC FORSTER.

THE conductor came through the train explaining that a heavy drift of snow along the tracks had caused the delay. The snow had been unusually heavy, coming suddenly in great sheets, blown by a driving wind. But the passengers were not alarmed; the diner would supply their need of food, and the cars were warm and comfortable.

Janey, closing her magazine, looked through the window down a country road. She thought it would be refreshing to walk that white sunny way, and her fur coat was warm. So she replaced the small dark hat on her wavy hair and stepped briskly from the platform.

Now, as she walked the white sunny way she was thinking, ruefully, that there would be no one to welcome her back to the small apartment—no one to give a smiling word. Mother had always awaited her homecomings eagerly, farther following with his quiet but loving welcome. The rooms above the music store would be quite empty, echoing their loneliness. With her customary happy spirit Janey turned from sadder reflections to a thought of cheer. "I'll find some red mountain-ash berries," she determined.

Janey found the mountain-ash berries; she had glimpsed the drooping tree from afar. A flock of winter-hungry birds vanished, chattering at her approach. Janey was not very tall; she had to reach to touch the lowest limb—and then could not quite make it. A pleasing voice accented her—"May I assist you?" the voice asked, and the owner of the voice raised easily his strong arm to her aid. She stood, a branch in her hand, stripping from it tendrils of scarlet bloom. The man reached for more. He smiled down at Janey. "They are cheery in this white coldness," he said. "Were you detained in the train? I thought so. I, too, decided upon a country walk."

Janey smiled in turn her thanks. She liked the frank brown eyes of this obliging stranger; liked the breadth of his manly shoulders and the natural courtesy of his manner. They retraced their steps carward.

The young man had come on from the cousin's city, where Janey had been stopping, and conversation proved that he knew, in a business way, the cousin's husband. The young man's name was Bruce Cary, and civil engineering his trade; this came in natural confidence, as the long walk brought them together, and the fact of Janey's city residence was also communicated. "I could not keep up my old home, you know," she told Bruce Cary, "with the number of music pupils one may find in a small town."

It did not occur to either that confidences given freely to strangers was far from their custom. Simply, and unaccountably, each realized the other's true and comforting interest. Janey had read somewhere that love was like that—you felt that you had known the loved one indefinitely.

The man, helping her up the train steps, relaxed his assisting arm with strange regret. And when he asked the pleasure of sharing her car seat during the rest of the journey Janey gave consent joyfully.

Bruce Cary's journey did not end with Janey's destination; he told her this, regret in the tone that so pleased her. "Sometime," he begged, bending closer, "you will let me stop over to see you in the little music studio that is your home?"

Janey shook her head. "It has been very delightful, meeting this way," she said. "I, at least, have passed a happy hour. But after all, we are strangers to each other, going our separate ways. If, as time passes, my work is happier for the memory of this winter afternoon, if the red berries bring recollection of your kindness, your sympathetic understanding to me, why, that will be enough."

Janey smiled wistfully into the eager eyes regarding her.

"Please," she begged, "do not try to persuade me otherwise. It will be better so. 'Ships,' you know, 'that pass—'"

The man repeated slowly, "Then darkness again, and a silence. I think not that, my little friend. However, now, your way. Good-by until we meet again."

The cold apartment was cold and desolate. Even the crimson berries and the glowing lamp could not relieve the gloom. Janey touched the piano keys; a minor chord mocked her. "I suppose," she told herself tremulously, "this is the darkness and the silence!"

The days went on. It was inexplicable how one voice, newly learned, could haunt with thrilling cadence; how the glance of one pair of dark eyes could eclipse all eyes that had been before in memory.

Janey turned from the red berries one evening to respond to a tap at the studio door. Bruce Cary stood there; his smile confident in greeting.

"There are ships," he remarked, as he followed her into the lamplight, "that travel side by side through starlight, through many rocky dawns into the safe harbor of love. Janey, have you missed me—enough to know that you must live your life as my wife?"

"It is all very hard to believe this dream come true," she told him after a time. "But oh, Bruce, my dear, won't we always bless that friendly drift of snow."

Not High Enough.

Blinks—"It says in this paper that a Frenchman has invented an automobile that can be made to jump over obstacles three feet high." "Jinks—Well, he'll have to do better than that, for most pedestrians are five feet or over."

Two Types of Asphalt.

There are two types of asphalt. One is native asphalt, which is found in natural deposits generally in the form of lakes in Bermuda, Venezuela, Trinidad and other places. The second form of asphalt is known as crude oil, which comes from wells in Texas, Oklahoma, Mexico and California. This asphaltic oil is distilled into kerosene, gasoline, etc. The residue from this forms a hard substance which is known as asphalt cement, which is the last form of distillation. This asphaltic cement is used for road construction.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BIRD NEWS

Billie Brownie was given permission, as he so often is, by Mother Nature to visit the different birds. You know Mother Nature has given Billie Brownie the power to understand the language of the different creatures and they tell him their stories so he can let others know of their interesting ways.

Billie Brownie was eager to call on the birds. He hadn't chatted with them for ever and ever so long.

Chipping Sparrow Has a Black Bill.

First he had a talk with the Tree Sparrows.

"We don't mind the winter weather. We eat seeds from old weeds which we find sticking up above the snow," they told Billie Brownie. "And it is very seldom that we beg for food around houses. We can mostly always provide for ourselves."

"Now we heard of a description of sparrows as told by some one who knows all about birds," the Tree Sparrow talking explained to Billie Brownie, "and I shall give you that description for it is quite true and it was told well in human words."

"We were described as belonging to the same family as the Field Sparrows and Chipping Sparrows belong to though the others do not stay around so much in the winter."

"Now and again we have a field sparrow for a companion as we have much the same likes and dislikes but we do feel differently about the weather."

"These are the words used to explain about us and our looks."

"Chipping Sparrow has a black bill and Field Sparrow a red one during the summer but when the fall comes their bills are dull in color and lose their summer gorgeousness."

"Field Sparrow wears a reddish coat while Chipping Sparrow wears handsome white touches above his eyes."

"Now I'm bigger in size than these other two."

"I have white touches to the wings and a dark spot in the center of my breast which I call my pet spot!"

"I dearly love that spot."

"Sometimes we can sing quite sweetly. But I suppose we're not famous for our voices. Anyway they say it is to see us about in the winter."

"I could say so," Billie Brownie said, "and I thank you so much for having told me your story. It was enormously good of you."

"Delighted to tell you it," said the Tree Sparrow, with a pretty little trill to his voice.

Then Billie Brownie went to call on the Red-Breasted Nuthatch and there he heard of how these birds loved the great forest though at times they wandered off to see other places too and often they went for a trip with the Chickadee family or the White-Breasted Nuthatch.

They told Billie Brownie of the lady who always put suet on a lilac bush so that her bird friends could have nice meals all through the winter.

"We have blunt little tails and pointed bills," said the Nuthatch, "and that is really quite easy to remember. For one part of us is pointed and one is not, and that to us seems very simple."

"We don't think anyone would forget and say, 'Let us be on the look-out for the birds with blunt bills and pointed tails.'"

"No, surely they will be on the look-out for the birds with the pointed bills and the blunt tails. For these belong to the Nuthatch family."

"We of the Red-Breasted family are not so well known as the ones of the White-Breasted family. The latter are the ones about the lady's house where the suet hangs on the nearby lilac bush."

"But we have paid her a visit too."

"The White-Breasted cousins are bigger than we are. Then of course there is more reddish brown to us and more white to the cousins as you'd imagine by their names."

"Then, too, the White-Breasted cousins have white faces. And our voices are higher in pitch. Those are some of the differences."

"We hope we've told enough, Billie Brownie."

And Billie Brownie thanked them and said that now he thought he would always be able to tell the difference between the two families of Nuthatches.

Go to the Head of the Class.

"When water becomes ice," asked the teacher, "what is the great change that takes place?"

"The greatest change, ma'am," said the little boy, "is the change in price."

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

On a cold night there is nothing more appetizing than a good baked potato. One may vary the serving by using the following:

Stuffed Baked Potatoes.—Scrub the potatoes well with a vegetable brush and bake until soft. Cut off a slice from the top, scoop out the potato, mash and mix with one cupful of finely-minced, cooked beef, adding more seasonings and re-fill the potato skins above the edge of the openings. Set into the oven to brown. Serve garnished with parsley.

Veal Cutlets With Horseradish Sauce.—Wipe a slice of veal and cut the meat into pieces. Cover with boiling water, simmer until the meat is tender. Drain, sprinkle with salt dip into egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Spanish Steak.—Take two pounds of round steak, cut into four-inch squares, on each square place a slice of breakfast bacon, roll up and skewer with tooth pick. Place the meat rolls in a saucepan, cover with boiling water, add a chopped onion, three carrots, sliced thin, a pint of tomatoes, one tablespoonful of salt, a half-teaspoonful of pepper, and cook one and one-quarter hours. Serve hot.

Prune Salad.—Soak one-half pound of prunes over night and then simmer until tender. When cool pit them and stuff with walnut meats. Shred a bunch of lettuce, make nests and put on each plate four or five of the stuffed prunes. Add mayonnaise and serve.

On a cold day a good, old-fashioned dinner dish is side pork and baked potatoes. After the pork has been fried until crisp and brown, prepare a gravy with some of the fat adding two or three tablespoonfuls of flour and milk, cooked until smooth. Season well before serving.

Whad'jamean Slight Build?

Tasmanian Paper.—A young woman typist took part in the marathon race from Durban to Maritzburg, a fair-haired, blue-eyed girl of slight build; she weighs only seven tons.—Boston Transcript.

The Parading of Pants.

Lebanon has a colored man whose homespun logic is hard to combat. For instance, he insists that pants is an "uncommon" noun because it is singular at the top and plural at the bottom.—From the Lebanon (Ind.) Reporter.

Insects With Pleasant Odors.

There is a tropical wasp that builds mud nests which, if crushed, smell like raspberry vinegar, and several other insects have equally pleasant odors.

Window Refrigerator.

Its inventor has patented a refrigerator so mounted on hinges outside a window that it can be swung to one side to leave the window opening clear.

Nothing to Worry About.

Scientists say there need be no fear of the sun "dying" too quickly, and of the earth getting cold. The sun's heat will last, they say, for another billion years or so.

A Novel Plea.

Motorist's defense in English court. "My car is an American one. I've tried as hard as I can to go slow, but its nationality is against me; it will hurry."—Boston Transcript.

Russian Women Work Young.

Women of Russia begin to work between the ages of fifteen and seventeen years, and after thirty are considered to be less efficient and, to a large extent, are dispensed with.

Sinclair Will Return to U. S.

Only When It Is Convenient For Him—Says Government Got Too Much For Teapot Dome Anyway—Interested In German Oils.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Havre, Jan. 23.—I'll return to America as soon as it is convenient for me to do so," Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, declared here today upon his arrival aboard the liner Paris. Sinclair said he would so inform the senate committee investigating the circumstances surrounding the leasing of the Teapot Dome oil fields. Sinclair has been asked by the committee to return to the United States at once to testify on Archie Roosevelt's charge, that Sinclair Company paid the ranch foreman of Former Secretary of the Interior Fall $68,000.

I have received no message indicating the committee want me to return immediately," Sinclair said, "but possibly there are some cables waiting for me in Paris."

Commenting on the resignation of Roosevelt from his companies, Sinclair expressed surprise.

"The International News Service dispatch to me aboard the Paris was my first information of Archie's resignation," he said. "There were no indications when I left the United States that he contemplated such action."

"The allegations that I brought the Teapot Dome records and my check book stubs with me is all bunk," the oil man declared.

"If you want my honest opinion on the Teapot Dome deal was a good one for the government," Sinclair added. "The government got too much from the deal in my opinion."

Sinclair branded an untrue the report that there is any German capital in his companies.

"I'm interested in German oils and intend to increase my holdings," he said. The capital is mine to play with as I wish."

Miss Ildie Cook, a pupil of the shorthand department, has obtained a position as stenographer and clerical assistant with Reed & Reed, Saugerites, N. Y.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to serious complications.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat disease, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

Shriners' Ball Surpassed All

Nearly 2,000 Attended—Manhattan Ramblers and Entertainers Were Highly Praised.

The Shriners' Ball of 1924, for the benefit of the Industrial Home, far surpassed in every way any similar ball given by the red fedez before. It was a huge success in every way. The Armory looked particularly attractive; the orchestra was amazingly good; and the program preceding the dancing delightful to a degree, while it was estimated that close to two thousand people were in attendance; and last but by no means least, the costumes worn by the women were exceptionally beautiful and becoming, with the glint of gold and silver fabric and beaded embroideries and colorful combinations.

At the farther end of the Armory, American flags were the one feature most in evidence. Overhead and along the balcony were artistically draped festoons of bright green and white streamers, while strung across at the lower points of the arching roof were myriads of orange colored balloons.

Almost as soon as the crowd began to assemble the orchestra began to entertain with a very enjoyable program. Both during the promenade concert and the dancing that followed the entertainment program, the music by the Manhattan Ramblers' Twelve was a delight. There was accent aplenty to make dancing thoroughly enjoyable, but there was also melody and harmony with a delightful absence of ear-splitting noises and on every hand one heard warmest words of praise, while the orchestra was applauded again and again during the early part of the evening—of course the dances were applauded—especially for their playing of a medley of Southern songs and plantation numbers.

The National Male Quartet of radio fame, opened the entertainment program, and proved to be as much more enjoyable at a close-up than when singing in Syracuse or some other far point as could be imagined. All of the quartet have fine voices that harmonize splendidly, and they bring to their audience that charm which comes from such numbers as have a laughter-provoking text, but a really touching musical setting, especially when as well sung as all of the many delightful numbers given by the National Quartet. One of the best of the first group of songs was a negro Spiritual.

Then Woodward and Morrissey gave a Spanish Tango, that was a novelty indeed, especially as to costume, and both proved themselves to be expert dancers.

Perhaps the most exquisitely charming feature of the evening's program was the visitation by the lovely "Bird Girl," Margaret McKee, from the Music Box Revue. Winsome in appearance, gowned in canary colored gorgette and carrying a large feather fan of deeper tones of yellow she was most attractive to look at, but her whistling numbers, and her bird imitations were marvelously realistic and appealing.

Woodward and Morrissey then gave two solo dances; the first a Fandango, the other a marvelous exhibition of agility, grace and endurance.

The return of the National Quartet as "The Four Horsemen," called forth rounds of applause, and one of the prize numbers of the second group wherein they so generously sang encores after encores, was "Yes We Have No Bananas," a la Grand Opera.

Then the bird girl gave "The Mocking Bird," during which she seemed to actually be a robin a woodthrush, a song sparrow, etc., and she was most enthusiastically applauded.

The program closed with an exhibition waltz given by Woodward and Morrissey which was the finest bit of dancing that they did and they were recalled to repeat the number.

A fine sum of money must have been netted for The Industrial Home, in addition to the sale of tickets, there was a rushing business at the lemonade booth and the refreshment room.

Hurt in Fall From Haystack

William Storm of No. 51 Third avenue, a chauffeur in the employ of the Binnewater Lake Ice Company, was removed from his home to the Kingston City Hospital on Tuesday in the ambulance for injuries received in a fall from a hay stack at Mt. Marlon. At the hospital that afternoon an X-ray was taken, which showed that no bones had been broken. His condition was reported today as being comfortable.

Mr. Storm had driven to Mt. Marlon after a load of hay. He climbed to the top of a large stack and in some way lost his footing and fell, striking the auto truck at the foot of the stack. He was knocked unconscious and removed to his home, where he complained of pains in the head, which caused his removal to the hospital. He is being attended by Dr. A. A. Stern.

League Explains Milk Price War

Many farmers are debating the question: Who started the cutting of fluid milk prices to producers, the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., or the dealers who do not buy from the dairymen's organization?

G. W. Slocum, president of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., answers this question as follows:

"The Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., stands above all things for a fair price for milk to its members. It believes that every farmer is entitled to the cost of production plus a reasonable profit. All fair-minded consumers (and the consumers pay the milk bills) want the farmer to get a fair return for his labor and investment. The only objection to this program are certain dealers. However, as long as the unorganized producers compete against organized producers, no farmer in either group can get the price for his milk to which he is entitled.

"The records of producers' milk prices for the past six months show that every month the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., charged the dealers for Class 1 milk (fluid milk for city consumption) more than Sheffield Farms Company and others not buying from the League paid to their producers.

"While the League was doing its best to get somewhere near a fair price for fluid milk, the non-pool buyers cut the price each and every month. Since July 1923 the Sheffield Farms Company's purchase price to their farmers has been on an average of $2.37 per 100 pounds below the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., Class 1 price. The cut ranged from 13 cents in July to 40 cents in November.

"On October 24, the League decided to sell November Class 1 milk at $3.45 per 100 pounds, which price was justified by November conditions and the law of supply and demand.

"Two days later, October 26, the Sheffield Farms Company agreed upon a price of $3.05.

"Non-pool milk came into New York in large quantities. Conditions were chaotic. The Cooperative Association had to protect its market by reducing its price on November 7 from $3.15 to $2.80.

"On November 12, five days later, the Sheffield Farms Company made another cut in its price to farmers from $3.05 to $2.58.

"The Cooperative Association's price for Class 1 milk for January was $2.80, which price had prevailed from early in November.

"The Sheffield price for the first half of January was $2.63 per 100 pounds, an increase of five cents over its price for December, which was the first admission that their prices had been too low in relation to the fluid milk prices established by our association.

"Determined to preserve its fluid milk markets in New York city, the Cooperative Association on January 7 lowered its price from $2.80 per 100 pounds to $2.33. Later Sheffield Farms decided to buy non-pooled milk for the last half of January at $2.35. This is two cents higher than the Cooperative Association's price for the same period.

"It is very clear that, although the Cooperative Association has made every effort to obtain for its farmers a fair price for fluid milk, certain non-cooperating buyers have persistently cut the producers' price from month to month regardless of the seasonal reduction in the flow of milk, and the increased costs of production.

Ten Million Trout Waiting

Now in State Hatcheries Awaiting Development—Applications For Fish Should Be Made By February 1.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, Jan. 23.—There are now in the fish hatcheries of the state about 10,000,000 eyed eggs of brook trout awaiting development for planting in the public waters of the state. The product of these eggs will be distributed as fry and fingerlings, to applicants in all parts of New York.

During the season of 1923, from a similar number of brook trout eggs, there were planted in various waters 3,033,333. From these figures it will be seen that the loss of eggs through disease, pickoff etc., was exceptionally small. About seven-eighths of the entire number of trout planted were fingerling fish ranging from 2 to 5 inches in length. From a fish cultural standpoint, this is a remarkable record and gives evidence of the care and capability of the men in charge of the hatcheries.

The pickoff, or elimination of poor eggs which cannot be fertilized at the hatcheries, has been unusually small this year. In one instance, in a lot of 800,000 eggs, only one fifth of one per cent was picked off. This is remarkable as showing an extra quality in the eggs and the care in their handling.

The outlook is excellent for a splendid lot of fry and fingerling brook trout at the hatcheries of the Conservation Commission for the season of 1924, and the prospect of an excellent supply of food and game fish of other species both fresh water fish and marine are excellent. The total distribution of fish from New York Hatcheries in 1923 was 764,000,000.

To be certain of attention during the season for fish distribution applications for trout of the various species should be received by the Conservation Commission prior to February 1st. Applications for pike-perch, yellow perch and black bass should be made before March 1st. Applications are filled in the order of their receipt and should the stock of young fish at the hatcheries fall short of expectations those who send in late applications may be obliged to wait a year before their requests can be granted.

Kerensky Gives an Interview

Thinks Counter Revolution Eventually Will Overthrow Soviets But Time Is Not Yet Ripe.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, Jan. 23.—Prediction was made here today that Russian royalists will attempt to take advantage of Nicolai Lenin's death to agitate for the overturn of the Soviet government at Moscow.

"Lenin's death marks the beginning of the most critical period of Bolshevism," said the Lokai Anzeiger. "Hiltherto Bolshevism has been backed by Lenin's overshadowing personality. Anti-Bolshevists will not remain inactive."

The entire German press gave Lenin credit as the most prominent figure in world politics in the last century. Newspapers pointed out the possibility of restoration of Russia along bourgeois lines.

Alexander Kerensky, former Socialist premier of Russia, whose government was overthrown by the Bolsheviks, told International News Service today he looked for counter revolution in Russia, but not immediately.

"I remain the head of my party (Socialist)," said Kerensky. "The hour is not yet ripe, but I think the day is dawning when a counter revolution in Russia will succeed."

"Watch the leaders in Moscow cut each other's throats in the coming struggle for Lenin's heritage."

"My own information, direct from Moscow, is that Trotsky is really sick with cancer. His sickness is not political by any means."

"There will be no consequences from Lenin's death for the time being. Fortune smiled upon the Soviets through the fact that Lenin was a dying man for two years. In that time all Russia and the whole world, in fact, had time to prepare themselves for his actual demise."

"The band of criminals surrounding Lenin might be compared with an orchestra. They were thoroughly trained during the two years that Lenin was disabled by illness. Now they are fully able to play by themselves—for a time at least."

Baron Von Malan, co-author of the Russo-German (Rapallo) treaty, called upon M. Krestinsky, the Russian envoy, expressing deepest condolence.

The flag over the "Russian embassy" is at half mast.
All the newspapers commented at great length upon Lenin and his works.

The Berliner Tageblatt said: "Lenin was the strongest refutation of his revolutionary doctrine. He applied brutal force to his countrymen whom he wanted to liberate from the czarist yoke. But he died like a hero. The tragedy was that he was unable to attain his aims."

Vorwärts, organ of the Socialists, said: "Lenin was a demon-like power behind the Bolsheviks. He was a big 'iron brush' sweeping aside the dust of feudalism. But his dictatorship turned out to be a scourge for his own countrymen."

Schaefer Loses Lead to Hoppe

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago, Jan. 23.—Jake Schaefer, challenger for the world's 18.2 pound championship, must score 761 points to Willie Hoppe's 500 tonight to regain the title, now held by Hoppe.

Hoppe overcame Schaefer's lead of 131 points made in the opening block and in a fine run of 182 in the thirteenth inning of last night's play, took the lead from the Californian. The champion ticked off 631 points while Schaefer was netting 239. The match now stands: Hoppe, 1,000; Schaefer, 739.

A portly spectator, watching the match, crashed to the floor when his chair collapsed at the 54th point of Schaefer's high run of 70. The young challenger was visibly affected by the clatter and seemed slightly shaken when he resumed play. Hoppe last night averaged 30 1-21.

Pay on Installment Plan.
The New York Nursery and Child's hospital has devised a plan for welcoming the stork on the installment plan. Prospective mothers register in advance for reservations and pay $7 or $18 per month for seven months, according to whether a ward or private room is required. At the time of baby's arrival all is paid so that the family exchequer is not overtaxed all at once.

What Is Meant by the "Levant?"
This is a geographical name employed throughout Europe to designate the eastern parts of the Mediterranean sea and adjacent countries. In a wider sense, it is applied vaguely to the regions eastward from Italy, as far as the Euphrates and the Nile; but more generally is used in a more restricted sense, as including only the coasts of Asia Minor, Syria and Egypt.

Formation of Coal.
The general theory regarding the formation of coal is that it results from the decomposition of vegetation in swamps under tremendous pressure at a high temperature. The first state is peat; second, lignite; third, bituminous; fourth, anthracite; and the final state is graphite from which pencils are made.

Things Pope Bans.
Women visitors to the pope must wear dresses which reach to the wrists, ankles and chin; white gloves, "make-up" such as powder and rouge and all rings, save wedding and engagement rings are placed under the ban.

Many Game Law Violations

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Jan. 23.—The Conservation Commission's game protectors prosecuted 2,700 violations of the fish and game laws and collected in fines and penalties $70,000 during the first six months of the current fiscal year.

If this average is maintained throughout the balance of the present fiscal year, and the indications are that it will be, the number of violations prosecuted will be in the neighborhood of 5,400 and the aggregate recovery in fines and penalties about $140,000.

The basic salary of a protector is $1,200 a year and there are 131 protectors in service giving a basic salary total of $157,200. If the present rate of recoveries continue throughout the year, the net cost to the state for protectors would be about $300 per man.

With the exception of two years, in the past twelve, the protectors have bettered their records each year and there is a good prospect that within a few years they will become the first self sustaining body of game protectors in the United States.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Mrs. John D. Smith died at her home in Lyonsville Monday, January 21, following a brief illness.

A first anniversary Mass for the repose of the soul of the late Nora McGrath will be offered at St. Mary's Church Thursday morning at 7 o'clock.

The funeral of the Rev. Philip B. Strong, D. D., who died at his home in Ridgewood, N. J., Tuesday morning, will be held from the Albany Avenue Baptist Church Friday afternoon, January 25, at 3 o'clock.

The funeral of Arthur H. Howlett of Sleightsbury, husband of Magdalena Howlett, who died Saturday, January 19, at Brooklyn, was held Tuesday at Brooklyn. Interment was made in the family plot in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Sarah Francis Bailey, wife of Frank S. Decker, of Coxsack, died Monday evening at her home in that village, aged 78 years. She was the daughter of Thomas and Hester Bailey and for many years resided at Highland. Besides her husband she is survived by three children, a daughter, Mrs. M. Oia Mackey of Williamstown, Pa., and Percy W. Decker and Louis B. Decker of Catskill.

Funeral Thursday morning with burial at Highland.

The funeral of Martin V. Burgevin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Burgevin, of 7 Johnston avenue, was held this morning at the Holy Cross Church, Pine Grove avenue, where at 10 o'clock a solemn Mass of requiem was celebrated, the Rev. Gregory Mabry being the celebrant.

There was a large attendance of relatives, neighbors and friends at the service. The interment was in the Burgevin family plot in Whitwick cemetery.

This morning, the funeral of Mrs. Margaret McGinn was held from her late home, 30 East Pierpont street, at 9 o'clock and 9:30 at St. Mary's Church, where a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. John F. Duffy.

The children's choir sang the responses during the mass and at the conclusion rendered very feelingly "Come Unto Me." Besides her son Joseph of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mrs. McGinn is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Louis Dunne and Mrs. John Hortic of this city, and one brother, Morris Slater of Brooklyn.

Mrs. McGinn had a host of friends who attended the Mass and many of them accompanied the cortege to St. Peter's Cemetery, Rosendale, where interment was made in the family plot.

James Miller, a lifelong and highly respected citizen of this city, died early this morning, after a short illness. Mr. Miller for many years conducted a wholesale and retail ice cream and confectionery business on Broadway. Twelve years ago he went into the garage business, where by his genial disposition and strict attention to details he had built up a good patronage. Besides his wife, Catherine Weber Miller, he leaves two sons, Franklin and Kenneth, one daughter, Ethel Miller, his mother, Mrs. Sara Green, four brothers, Robert, John, Levi and William Miller also two sisters, Mrs. Emma Dubois and Mrs. Rella Locke. Funeral from his late home No. 354 Broadway, Friday morning, at 9 o'clock and 9:30 at St. Peter's Church, with a requiem Mass for the repose of his soul.

Short Session Probable.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Jan. 23.—Prospects of a short session of the State legislature appear brighter now than at any time since the lawmakers organized. This is because most of the controversial measures will be either agreed upon or abandoned at conferences between Governor Smith and the Republican leaders before they are introduced.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 23.—The stock market opened generally steady today. A few fractional declines were registered but advances predominated.

Steadiness characterized trading in the forenoon. Widespread selling of Pan-American issues had a somewhat unsettling effect on the list in the early dealings. Both the A. and the B. stock established new low records at 48 1/2 and 47 1/2 respectively. The balance of the list held firm. Copper stocks were in demand, Anaconda rising 1/4 to 38 and Inspiration Copper 1/4 to 26 1/2. Steels held steady. Rails showed some irregularity.

HEROIC RAIL MEN OF RUSSIA

Operate Relief Trains During Famine Period Under Great Hardship and Peril.

The life of the railroad man is very much the same, whether in America or Africa. There is the same lure and fascination about it, the same relentless exaction of high responsibility and faithful service, even unto death.

An executive of the American Society of Friends recently returned from relief work in Russia, writes us as follows about the bravery of Russian engineers during the worst of the famine period.

"I have seldom seen a more heroic set of men. They worked under tremendous handicaps, with worn-out railroad stock and engines, which were constantly breaking down, some of them blowing up and scalding engineers and firemen. They were hungry and badly clothed. Their fuel was nothing but snow and ice-covered wood.

"At one time 40 of every 100 men working on the Tashkent branch were sick with typhus, many of whom died. Yet, in the face of such conditions these men worked tirelessly on, and so faithful was their service that we were able to deliver 99 per cent of all the materials from our American port to our warehouse east of the Volga river.

"The winter, too, was very severe, being 40 degrees below zero in December and 55 degrees below in February. The snows were deep and it was nothing unusual for the cuts to be so filled with snow that it took days to dig through."

We are not at all concerned about the politics of these Russian engineers or the language that they speak, for we know that they are our kin because American engineers in a similar emergency would have done likewise.

Diameter of Universe Revealed by Professor

The diameter of the universe is the length of 10,000 milky ways. And this milky way yardstick is 30,000 times the distance that light, traveling 186,000 miles per second, covers in one year. Light comes from the sun to the earth in about eight minutes.

This is the conclusion of Prof. Archibald Henderson of the University of North Carolina, given in a communication in Science, the official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He assumed that space and the universe are constructed according to Einstein's general relativity theory.

"It would take a ray of light, traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles per second, 1,000 million years to go around the universe," Professor Henderson says. "To go around the universe it would take the fastest airplane three quadrillion years; the fastest automobile five and a half quadrillion years, and an express train, traveling at the rate of sixty miles an hour, eleven quadrillion years."

Such Is Fame.

The house in Portland, Me., where Longfellow was born, had become, a number of years ago, a tenement in the poorer part of the city, mostly inhabited by Irish. A teacher in Portland was giving a lesson on the life of the poet. At the end of the hour, she began to question her class. "Where was Longfellow born?" she asked. A small boy raised his hand vigorously. When the teacher called on him his answer did not seem to astonish the rest of the class, but it was a cold shock to her. "In Patsy Magee's bedroom," he said.

Knew His Numbers.

"Now, Bobby, how much do six and four make?" "Seven, sir." "Guess again." "Twelve, nine, thirteen." "How about ten?" "Oh, you can't mix me up that way! Five and five are ten!"

AMERICAN SKATERS TO PARTICIPATE IN OLYMPIC GAMES

BALL PLAYERS TURN TO BASKETBALL GAME

Particularly Popular Sport in New England States.

A number of Eastern league players and ex-members of Eastern league teams have taken up basketball for the winter months. The game has great vogue in New England, where it is too cold for much outdoor sport, and some of the professional clubs pay their players well.

Harry Riconda, former New Haven third baseman, is one of the highest paid professional basketball players in the country. Riconda is a member of the New York Metropolitan Basketball league, and he earns a good living during the off season. It is reported that the Athletics' third sacker draws a salary of almost $5,000 for his work during the winter months.

Snooks Dowd, New Haven second baseman, who is also a star at the court game, will be a member of Nick Altrock's team, which played through the Middle West last winter. The team is composed of major league players, with the exception of Dowd, and they are a big attraction wherever they appear.

Frank McGowan, former New Haven outfielder, now a member of the Athletics, is a member of the Brantford team, which appears in New Haven during the winter months.

Carl Schmehl spends some of the winter evenings playing with the Portchester town team. Schmehl plays forward.

Chic Gagnon, who was a star performer on the basketball court at Holy Cross, managed the Purple collegians last season. Gagnon is rated as one of the best basketball players ever turned out.

Bobby Murray, former Worcester infielder, who is now a member of the Washington Americans, is a hoop star in his home town in New Hampshire.

Shorty Demoe, Hartford's star second baseman, has been engaged to coach a team that will represent Fall River, Mass., in a league to be started in that section. Although it is not known by many Eastern league fans, the Hartford second sacker was at one time rated as one of the leading professional players in the country. Demoe has not taken part in the court game the past few years, but is still able to play a good game.

Al Kuhn of the Eastern league staff of umpires is manager of a professional basketball team in Springfield.

Paterson at Armory Tonight

Tonight at the local armory court the regular weekly Metropolitan basketball game will be played between the local outfit and the Paterson quintet. The Paterson squad recently dethroned the Brooklyn team, first half champions, and are now sitting at the head of the list.

Leading the Paterson contingent is a player known to local fandom, Benny Borgman. Arthur Powers, Harry Knoblauch and Nick Harvey, all former members of the Kingston team, are also members of the Paterson Club. Benzon, Dreyfus and Steele are the remaining players.

The Kingston team will in all probability lineup with C. Husta and C. Powers in front to start the contest, with Anderson at center and Artus and Campbell or Newmann at the guard positions.

Kingston at present is in fourth place.

The game will be called at the usual hour, dancing to follow.

18TH AMENDMENT'S BIRTH CELEBRATED AT WALKILL.

WALKILL, Jan. 23.—Notwithstanding the heavy downpour of rain, which prevailed Wednesday evening, January 16, a large number gathered at Community Hall to celebrate the fourth anniversary of the 18th amendment to the United States constitution.

The celebration was in charge of the local W. C. T. U., the president, Miss Katherine Deyo, presiding. She read a paper of much interest on the general subject of prohibition. "Vocal solo," "All the World is Blooming," was pleasingly rendered by Miss Viola Crookston, accompanied by Miss Dora Crookston. Mrs. Charles Champlin read an article from "The Union Signal," which was well received. A cornet solo, "A Perfect Day," was played by Leonard Terwilliger, accompanied by his mother on the piano. In response to a prolonged encore he played "Somewhere a Voice is Calling." A piano solo, "The Melody in F," by Rubenstein, was well rendered by Lucile Van Wazenen. Vocal solo, "The Women Folks are Looking After You," was sung by Mrs. Webster Hara, with Miss Ethel Champlin accompanist. This new, catchy temperance song scored a big hit with the audience. A piano solo by Miss Dora Crookston was unusually well rendered. A voting demonstration in charge of Mrs. Janet Brown, brought out some poor reasons given by many women for not voting, while many good reasons were given why women should vote. A piano solo was very skillfully performed by Mrs. Robert Crawford with much energy and precision. A paper was read by Mrs. J. W. S. Cox in which she referred to the national W. C. T. U.'s legislative representative, her work and her expenses. Piano solo, "Christmas Chimes," by Miss Ethel Champlin, closed the program. The amount of the collection taken was for the benefit of the national legislative representative. A social time followed, during which tasty and satisfying refreshments were served.

Brennan Leads Met. Scorers

Last Week Saw Many Changes In The League Standing—Players are Pined—Danny McNichol Signed by Morganweck.

Considerable changing among the leaders in the Metropolitan Basketball League race took place during the week just closed—Brooklyn by losing to Paterson and Trenton dropped to a tie with Kingston for fourth place, after leading since the start of the second half. Kingston, by breaking even with Greenpoint and losing to Trenton dropped to fourth place after being in the runner up position. Paterson and Yonkers jumped to first place by winning their only games against Brooklyn and Trenton, respectively. Trenton defeated Kingston and Brooklyn, but lost to Yonkers.

Brennan of Brooklyn is leading Morgan of Paterson for first place honors by the scant margin of three points, although the diminutive Jersey star has participated in one less game.

During the past week Norman of Yonkers and Sullivan of Greenpoint were fined $10 each for displaying their pugilistic ability at Greenpoint, while Barlow of Trenton was fined $25 for unbecoming conduct at Trenton last Friday. Jimmy Campbell of Kingston was also fined $25 for not appearing at Trenton with his team last week.

GIRL DOG "MUSHER" ON MOONSHINE TRAIL

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Plattsburg, N. Y., Jan. 23.—"Whistling Lyd" Hutchinson, girl dog team driver, is expected to reach this city today. She left Elizabeth town shortly after ten o'clock last night with her dog team headed for this place. Because she did not arrive here promptly on time fears were expressed for her safety. It is now understood that she spent the night with a family along the P.O.-Moonshine road.

Miss Hutchinson is on her way to the winter sports carnival at Montreat. There she will select a dog team which she will drive in the American dog derby, February 22, in her own state of Idaho.

MOTHER AND 4 CHILDREN BURNED WITH THEIR HOME

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 23.—A mother and her four children were burned to death today in a fire that destroyed their home at Middleport, near here.

The mother, Mrs. Andrew Harvill, perished when, breaking away from neighbors, she ran back into the blazing structure in a vain attempt to rescue her baby, aged one year. The other children were aged 9, 8 and 6.

The husband and another child were visiting relatives at the time.

TO TURN NEWBURGH TROLLEY BARN INTO GARAGE

The building on Broadway, Newburgh, formerly the power house and car barn of the street railway system, has been sold to Deisseroth Bros., Inc., who will turn it into a garage. The trolley cars are now operated by power from the Central Hudson Electric Co. and the operating of busses has so decreased the number of cars in use that the building was no longer needed by the trolley company.

Ferryboats Discontinue Trips.
The Catskill-Greendale ferryboat and the Athens-Hudson ferryboat discontinued their trips Tuesday, due to the rapid formation of ice in the river. The Catskill creek and the river were open Monday morning. The creek was frozen over by noon and the river before night. It is said that this was one of the quickest freeze-ups ever known in that section.

Labor Begins Ruling Britain

Henderson Approaches Rail Strike Problem—Public Friendly to New Ministers, 7 of Whom are Trade Unionists.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. London, Jan. 23.—England's first labor government, under the stewardship of J. Ramsay MacDonald, began to function today under circumstances which will test its skill and strength to the utmost.

The first meeting of the new government was scheduled for 4 o'clock this afternoon after the cabinet had received the seals of the office.

Arthur Henderson, the new secretary for home affairs, was the first member to begin active duties. He sent word to the striking railway locomotive engineers and firemen that the government desires an early conference in an effort to settle the trouble.

Up to mid-afternoon, Henderson had not succeeded in arranging a "peace conference."

Some of the difficulties under which the labor government will operate are roughly grouped as follows:

1. The railroad strike.
2. Bitter antagonism from the Tories and many Liberal members of Commons.
3. Widespread unemployment.
4. Decreased trade.

The new cabinet was well received by the public. There was some surprise because only seven trade unionists were admitted. Of the 27 members of the government 13 are practically recent converts to the labor party.

It is expected that Margaret Bondfield, Great Britain's woman Laborite, will be included among the under-secretaries to be announced this evening.

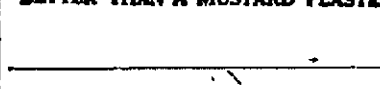

Relieves Rheumatism

Musterole loosens up stiff joints and drives out pain. A clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard, it usually brings relief as soon as you start to rub it on.

It does all the good work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster, without the blister. Doctors and nurses often recommend its use.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.
